

Wolfshead Field Archers

25th February 2018

The weather on the day of the first Wolfshead open shoot of 2018 was good for the time of year, staying dry with relatively little wind. Later in the week the 'beast from the east' snow arrived bringing large parts of the country to a standstill, so our 67 guests were fortunate to be able to appreciate the new targets and course improvements unhindered by the elements. It was good to see new faces among the regulars archers who participated in the shoot. We hope that you enjoyed yourselves and look forward to seeing you all at our future shoots, together with those who couldn't make it this time. Anyone attending our future open shoots on 10th June and 2nd September 2018 will be assured of a warm welcome and an interesting course amidst the beautiful North Yorkshire countryside. Finally, thanks as always to the course marshals and catering staff who make the event possible.
